The Cunard mail steamship Europa, Shannon, arrived at nine o'clock yesterday morning. She left Liverpool on Saturday noon, the 19th uit. She arrived off Sandy Hook at ten o'clock on Monday night.

The news is three days later and important.

The telegraphic despatches from Vienna, Bucharest, and Paris, represent that the Turks had retired to the east bank of the Danube, after a severe contest with the Russians and the concentration of an overwhelming force of the enemy around Oltenitza. But a despatch from Berlin, the very latest that we have seen, aunounces that the Turks have gained another victory at Oltenitza.

A telegraph from Vienna, dated the evening of the 17th ult., says the Turks attempted a passage near Kalarash and from an island opposite Giurgevo, but the Russians repulsed them at both place; with considerable loss. The Russian corps, commanded by General Osten Sacken, amounting to 50 000 men, is said to have crossed the Pruth. Advices from Jassy, Moldavia, of the 6th uit, announce that the Russians were sending their sick and wounded to Kirchencau and Bassarabia. The number of pitals of Wallachia and Moldavia were insufficient to con-re-crossed the Danube most unaccountably improved the market for public securities in London, it being assumed that should Russia have gained the upper band, she will show her magnanimity by removing all the causes of war that at present exist. It is assumed, also, that the French and English governments will fail to give that aid and assistance to Turkey which they are bound to do, by treaty as well as honor, in the event of the Turkish power being insufficient to repel the inso-lent aggression of the Car. Consols, which were 94% to 95%, both for money and the account, upon the publication of the news of the retirement of the Turkish force from Olleniz-za, improved to 95% to 3%, but they are now a shade flutter later in the day.

Advices from Constantinople of the 7th ult., state that a new project of note arrived the previous morning, with instructions to the ambassadors of England and France to recommend it to the Porte; but there appeared to be a lecided objection, on the part of the Porte, to its being signed. The city was perfectly tranquil. Several Russian prisoners of war had arrived from Batoum, and more were expected. The fort of Chekwetit, taken by the Turks on the 28th of October, contained two thousand muskets, four cannon, and one thousand men. The reported resignation of Lord Aberleen is not confirmed nor denied by this steamer. We must wait the further development of the Russian policy in India, and further development of the Russian policy in India, and the course the English government intend to pursue in regard to the Turkish war. The resignation of Lord Aberdeen is probably, for the present, one of the secrets of the Cabinet Council of the 12th alt.

patches, &c., &c. We have the most extraordinary lack of reliable information as to the events occurring at the seat of war. So utterly improbable and contradictory are many of the reports given, that it is a waste of time and ink to repeat them. While one says that Gortschakoff was repulsed from before Olteniza, another asserts that he drove the furks across the Danube; a third says that the Turks stormed Bucharest; a fourth that they had chased the Russians to the Pruth; a fifth that Osten-Sacken's division had the Turks hemmed in, and that they were at his m ercy; a sixth takes liberties with the geography of the place, and relates that the Russians were retreating to Kronstadt, an Austrian town, and that a body of Turks had been despatched through Servia to intercept them. It may be that no action deserving of the name has been fought since the repulse of Gortschat off from Olte nitza, as published in the news by the Atlantic. Skirmishes are almost daily, but they have no weight on the general issue. The enthusiasm of the Turks, since it was known that the Sultan will himself command the army, exceeds all bounds.

THE WAR BETWEEN RUSSIA AND TURKEY-THE COR-RECT STATEMENT OF AFFAIRS—THE POSITION OF AUSTRIA.

I regret to state that the telegraphic despatch which

But to the details:-

has appeared in the London Times, and which will doubtless find its way into some of the American papers, to the effect that the Turks had taken Bucharest by storm, and that the Russians were in full retreat on Cronstadt, has not been confirmed. Since the battle of Oltenitza, details of which I sent you in my last communication, no battle has been fought, though skirmishes have taken place daily on the shores of the Danube, in the vicinity of Ol tenitza, Guirg evo and Kalafat. Hitherte the Turks, animated by the sense of right, and led by experienced officers, have had the best of it; it was expected that a great battle would have been fought on the 11th inst, as Prince Gortschaleff, with 24,000 men, had advanced towards Oltenitza. Heavy rains, however, had swollen the Danube, and the cold was beginning to be felt. The latest dates received are Bucharest, Nov. 14. The news is not so fa vorable to the Turks as hitherto. But Omer Pacha it an experienced general, and by beating a retreat has shown that he is as cool as he is brave. The Turks have recrossed the Danube at Oltenitza, having previously blown up their fortifications at that place. They recrossed in good order without molestation. The Russians have con contrated 45,000 men at Oltenitzs. The fifth Russian corps d'armeé is advancing from Ibrail, under Gen. Engelbardt, to which a portion of the fourth division, 12,000 strong, is to be added. It was also intended that the third division, actually in Poland, should advance, but so much excitement prevails there that Field Marshal Paskiewitch said it would be highly imprudent te move, it. Two Polish officers have been shot already. In the manifesto of the Emperer to the troops, he says: "We will march in defeace of the orthodox faith." The two officers in question went to their Colonel and asked their dismissal, as they were Catholics, and could not fight for the Greek religion. The Colonel demanded instructions from St. Petersburg. The reply was: "Shoot them." They were shot accordingly. Four others are said to have hears shot in Moldavia.

The campaign is only opened. The Turks are also recontrated 45,000 men at Oltenitra. The fifth Ru

The campaign is only opened. The Turks are also re-ceiving reinforcements from all quarters, and in Asig-their arms have been victorious.

What part will England and France take? Will those two powers go to war with Russia? that is the question. It is the "to be or not to be" of the Turkish Empire. The time for diplomatic negotiations is over. Russia won't give in—Turkey won't give in—and the two powers have promised to support Turkey. Kisseleff, the Russian Ambassador at Paris, is in a regular fix. He has been invited to the fets at Fontainbleau, given by Louis Napoleon, and has resolved to have the influenza till he receives instructions from St. Petersburg. I met Brunow, the Russian Ambassador here, yesterday, in Plocadilly, looking blue, with a wrapper up to his nose, and looking as eross blue, with a wrapper up to his nose, and looking as cross as a bear.

Admiral Slade, (en Anglo Turk,) of the Turkish navy, has entered the Black Sea with six Turkish frigates and two war steamers. The object of the expedition is not precisely known. Four Russian men-of-war have been signalled cruizing there. The Tarks say that Allah in great, and that Mahomed is his prophet, and ask what the combined squadrons are going to do. Charts of the Black Sta are eagerly sought for. The English maval force there is as follows:

Meetings are continually held in London, Manchester, and other large cities, at which resolutions are passed in favor of Turkey, and in praise of the Sultan, who, by the bye, has been surnamed the Victorious.

The Sultan has formally announced his intention of joining the army in person in the spring—his own words—which denotes that he does not intend to negotiate any Austria has prepared another note and a renewal of neotiations, to give Russia time. Austria, as I in my last, is in an awkward predicament. At a meeting of the German Diet, at Frankfort, on the 10th inst., Austria explained her proposed policy, (at least as much of it as she chose to explain,) to the federal Diet. The Eastern question, said the Austria representative, touches nearly the interests of the German con federation, of which two of the powers that have taken part in the negotiations are members. It is the intention of Austria to abstain from taking any part in the struggle which has commenced as long as her own interests are not compromised. She will continue her efforts to prevent the conflagration spreading further, and the reiterated assurances of the Cabinet of St. Petersburg have given the certitude that that power has no wish to interfere with the integrity of Turkey or the sovereign powers of the Sultan. After this flummery, the Au trian representative added :-- "Austria hopes that the confidence she entertains in the maintanance of peace, and the efforts she has made with that object in view, will not fail to meet with the approbation of the German governments—an approbation which all would regard not only as a satisfaction, but as a real helpand veritable support.

Yesterdar, by the packet from Trebisond, news was received from listtoum. There, also, the Turks have well commenced the campaign. A corp; of their troops has attacked by assault the fort of Nicolas Kwaponsky, called in Turkish Chekveill. One thousand Russians were killed, and tajkiny made prisoners, among when is a member of the family of Gourief. Seeing themselves forced in their fortress, and they were completely destroyed, in suite of the efforts of the Turks to extinguish the finner. The fortress was defended by three thousand men. The Turks found two thousand carbines, made on the model of those used by the Chasseurs of Vincannes, all beasing the mark of the double-headed Russian eagle, and the mark of a manufactory at Liege. Taree pieces of cannon were also taken. The combat was very sanguiarry. A battalion of the Turkish Guard particularly distinguished itself.
